E-Waste recycling

Crown's e-waste recycling system has four main components:

office computer equipment

printer & toner cartridges

mobile phones

radio batteries.

Office computer equipment

Computers, monitors, keyboards, cables and other accessories are all collected for recycling. Crown's IT department collects the items at the point of changeover when equipment is replaced or upgraded. The computer waste is stored until enough is accumulated for collection. IT Decommissioning & Logistics (ITDL) provide a comprehensive service to ensure equipment is recycled or reused where still in functioning condition. Certificates of data destruction and environmentally friendly disposal are provided by ITDL.

Printer & toner cartridges

At the point of changeover, Crown's admin staff put used printer and toner cartridges back into the original box, and then send these via internal mail to a central collection point. Kyocera provide a free collection from that point, with the service provided as part of its contract for printers. The collection includes all consumable items from the printers.

Mobile phones

Crown's IT department collects all of Crown's redundant mobile phones, batteries, charges and accessories for recycling. In addition, Crown's staff are able to bring old mobile phones from home for recycling. The phones and accessories are collected and recycled through the MobileMuster program which is a free service. MRI (Aust) Pty Ltd in Melbourne dismantles, sorts, stores and processes the mobile phone handsets, batteries, chargers and accessories collected by MobileMuster.

Radio batteries

Crown's staff use radios for on-site communication because of the vast size of the complex. Batteries from the radios are collected by Crown's IT department and then stored for collection. The batteries are recycled through Motorola's Green Scheme, which recovers materials from the batteries for recycling or for safe disposal.
